Following function read theory answers cheat sheet questions

If the student fails the quiz (scores 69% or less), then the quiz is replaced into the pool of available quizzes and the student's level decreases. For security reasons, our site automatically logs users out after several minutes of what seems like inactivity. ReadTheory LLC is a small, independent business. Click on a heading to zoom to its contents. All students will be moving within a range of grade levels at all times so that they will be continually challenged. If you click on the "learn more" link, a new window will open with detail descriptions of our question types. Our ads come to us from a third-party aggregator. We can only save data from accounts that are logged in. However, if a teacher notices that this has occurred, it is up to him or her to discuss the situation with the student in a way that he or she deems appropriate. Our points are solely motivational in nature. We recommend that you search the web for the name of your web browser plus the phrase "forget saved password," or use your browser's Help and/or Settings functions. For our mapping of Lexile® levels onto grade levels, we follow a mix of the 25th to 75th percentile scores from the Text Demand Study 2009 and the 2012 CCSS Text Measures. There is some overlap between the grade levels on this scale. Our emblems are solely motivational in nature. Once you've done so, the student's progress will be erased and he or she can begin again from the pretest. For security reasons, passwords are encrypted upon creation and cannot be viewed or printed again in plain text form. We also sell high-quality printable workbooks at our online store. These are the only two authorized ways to access our content offline. It's the same as pressing F11 on a Windows computer. We sustain our free site, ReadTheory.org, through a combination of advertising and the sale of print materials at our sister site, ReadTheoryWorkbooks.com. Fountas and Pinnell is another widely-used system for levelling texts. The top of the bar will be at y=6, while the diamond will be at y=5. The difference represents the student's progress. Simply log into your teacher account, and you should be able to see a light grey "Reset Progress" option at the top of each of your rosters. From there, you'll be able to see our reading materials. Sometimes students open alternate accounts so that they appear to be working in class, but their progress is not visible to the teacher. Your students will be given the new passwords immediately and will be able to log in. Using this button will reset progress for all students on the roster you are currently viewing. All passwords are case-sensitive and must be at least 8 characters long. This occurs when our site logs users out after a certain time period of what seems like inactivity. Resetting the progress for this student will result in the loss of ALL his or her quiz data except for points earned, which will remain intact. If this menu is empty but you are certain that you have created more than one class list, your other list may actually be on an alternate teacher account that you aren't currently viewing. They can, however, be used to facilitate in class competitions in which teachers may reward students real world items at their own discretion. There are no licensing fees involved in using ReadTheory. Near the top, you'll find a drop-down menu where you can select an individual student report instead. Lexile levels used in Read Theory are measures of text complexity. This focused light could be seen from many miles away. No. We do not grant permission for users to duplicate our web passages. Motivate students with prizes and competitions. We completed a preliminary research study in March 2016 documenting the feedback of 1,100 teachers who used our program in 2015. Disseminating copies of our web material is a violation of our Terms of Use. The vast majority of students are able to complete the pretest quiz as well as most full-length quizzes before this security measure affects them. To reset student passwords, click the small grey checkboxes next to the affected students' names and then click the blue "Reset Password" link at the top of the list. Because student accounts ultimately belong to the students themselves (and the parents/guardians of said students), we allow them to edit their login information and drop/add classes. The Fresnel Lens A A A I view description I Image of a lighthouse using the Fresnel Lens. To track progress, students and teachers need to do the following... Students navigate to ReadTheory.org in their internet browser.Students sign up.Students log in.Students go to the "My Teachers" page.Students enter YOUR email address -the one you use to log in to ReadTheory- in the space provided.Students click the "Send Invitation" button. For instance, if a student scores 90% on a grade 5 quiz, s/he will then be leveled up and presented with a grade 6 quiz. This was especially true when they were close to shore. If you do not log out manually, other users who share your computer, phone, or tablet may be able to access your account without your consent. Then click on the student emblems displayed on that page. This is a security feature. NOTE: These bands do not represent performance levels or performance standards. Thank you for your understanding. We contract with MetaMetrics®, the inventors of the Lexile® framework, to compute the Lexile® levels for each passage. We encourage students to complete the pretest without taking any breaks, as their progress can be lost in this way. Click the OFF/ON button to toggle student written responses off or on. All students will be moving within a range of levels at all times so that they will be continually challenged. If a user does not pass a quiz (scores under 70%), the quiz is placed back into the pool of quizzes that could be randomly assigned to the student in the future. *Note that progress will not show up until a student has taken the pretest and completed at least one program quiz. Unfortunately, knowledge points do not have any redeemable value in the real world; they cannot be traded in for any physical reward like a medal or badge. Knowledge points are used throughout our program and have three primary purposes: 1) To motivate students to read, write, and learn more 2) To communicate a general indication of progress 3) To encourage best effort and to discourage careless click-through Students can earn knowledge points in the following ways: Answer a regular question correctly: 1KP Answer a challenge question correctly: 2KP (+1KP for regular question) Pass a quiz: 15KP awarded Get a perfect score on a quiz: 30KP awarded Complete a written response on a quiz: 1-25KP awarded by teacher *All point values may be subject to change as we strive to improve our program. When our materials are reproduced unlawfully, this undermines our ability to keep the site free and open for all. You can always contact us at support@ReadTheory.org if you are not receiving our automatically generated password or username reminder emails for any reason. If that material is too difficult, the pretest will immediately adjust to show first and second grade material instead. Maybe a student had skewed pretest, took a string of quizzes without putting in proper effort, or simply needs a fresh start. The only two ways we are able to sustain ReadTheory financially are through the sale of our official workbooks and the viewing of ads on our site. When this happens, the email bounces back to us immediately and it will never make it to your inbox or your spam filter at all. You can share student progress in a number of ways. At first, you'll be brought to your whole-class progress report. After the pretest, students will be placed in a grade, and our program will draw a passage at random from within that grade for the student. We diligently maintain a blacklist of any advertisers that are not appropriate for children so that these companies will not appear on our site. If you would like to delete your account, please contact us at support@ReadTheory.org with your name, email address, and the username of the account(s) you would like to close. Yellow diamonds represent a student's static, unchangeable performance on the placement pretest relative to his or her performance on our full-length quizzes. A student's progress report begins reflecting data once the student has completed the placement pretest and at least one full-length quiz on top of that. You may find it helpful to count only quizzes with a certain range of grade levels, rather than accepting all quizzes towards this goal.Log into ReadTheory as an in-class activity for a certain amount of time per week, perhaps as a participation grade. When you log into your teacher account, you are brought directly to your "My Students" page. Within any classroom or grade, there will be a range of readers and a range of reading materials. Please check out our handy ReadTheory, Lexile®, and CEFR guide. Student accounts may be suspended due to suspicious or improper use of our program. Official information is also available at corestandards.org/ELA-Literacy/ At the top of your whole-class and individual students' progress reports, there are two input boxes labeled "Begin Date" and "End Date." If you click on these boxes, a calendar will appear. Multiple teachers can track the progress of a single student. Note: The only approach we do NOT recommend is using only raw quiz scores to influence students' overall grades. However, for practical and aesthetic reasons, you may find it useful to keep the number of students per roster under 35, and the number of rosters per teacher account under 10. If you are unable to find the email containing this information, or if the login credentials are not working, you will need to choose a new password for your students. We strive to respond to all actionable emails within one business day. Just have the student send the new teacher an invitation. Rest assured, however, that there is no pressure to buy workbooks in order to gain access to the interactive site. ReadTheory.org. It also enables you to see the Lexile® text measures of the passages read by your students. Similarly, if it's too easy, the pretest will progressively move up to grades four, five, and beyond. There is no limit as to how many class rosters a teacher account can set up, and there's no limit as to how many students can be on each roster. Furthermore, some school districts' email servers prevent users from receiving automatically generated messages and/or messages from unknown senders. In any case, you can easily prompt the student to begin anew. Once you accept the invitation, your student will be re-added to your list of current students. Individual Student Reset: Log into your teacher account and navigate to your Progress Reports page by clicking the dark grey icon at the top of the page that looks like a graph. This is a very common issue, and sometimes the alternates can be as subtle as an extra space (username Jane S instead of JaneS) or a changed number (JaneS63 instead of JaneS64). Image is in the public domain. When each new study that becomes available, we'll make a new, prominent posting on our site. Fresnel invented a lens that would focus light into a single source. Whole Class Reset: This option is now available directly on your My Classes page. Please note that we need the exact URL of the advertiser in order to block it. The reset feature can be accessed in the following two ways. This information is for descriptive purposes only and should not be interpreted as a prescribed guide about what an appropriate reader measure or text measure should be for a given grade. The Lexile® Framework for Reading is intended to match readers with texts at whatever level the reader is reading. If a passage is too hard, the student will be presented with easier material once he or she receives a low score (under 70%) on the present quiz. Please contact us for more information. Because students' needs and goals can be so varied and individualized, we think teachers are the best judges of how to introduce ReadTheory into their classes and do not endorse any single, specific approach. It provides details on how Lexile® and CEFR relate as well as the limitations in doing direct comparisons between the two system. All logins proceed through www.ReadTheory.org/auth/login (this URL will not work if you are currently logged in!). They could not be seen from far away. Use this menu to choose the student whose data you wish to reset. Our site is fully interactive and responsive, so students will only ever see content based on their previous performance. We are proud of the fact that ReadTheory is free and available to all. If your student has not yet begun completing any full-length quizzes, this explains the absence of data. This is helpful because it allows teachers to remedy false starts or slumps without invoking any points penalty. Each time a student passes a full quiz (scores between 70% and 89%), the student remains at the same grade. Only passed quizzes are removed from this pool. Finally, we always have sample questions on the homepage so that curious new users can see what the site is like before they sign up. We know that this information is important to teachers and schools that wish to formally integrate our program into their curricula, especially for RTI, and plan to continue such research moving forward as our program becomes more widespread. This may result from careless quiz clickthrough, exceedingly poor performance, or otherwise gaming our system. For instance, if a student completed the placement pretest at a 5th grade level but consistently works at a 6th grade level on our full-length quizzes, the yellow diamond will appear below the top of student's bar on the Posttest Grade Level Performance graph. It measures sentence length, complexity, and word frequency to determine the level of a text. Alternatively, you can print your students' individual progress reports from within your teacher account and send these reports home. If parents have access to this information, they can log into the student's account and check the student's progress report at home. For example, in a fifth-grade classroom there will be some readers who are ahead of the typical reader (about 250L above) and some readers who are behind the typical reader (about 250L below). Sometimes, users who use our "forgot my password/username" button report finding our messages in their spam folders. Every week, we make one passage per grade level available to download on our Printables page. You'll need to have your student log in and send you an invitation to track her progress. We do not provide averages of students' correct answers on all quizzes. If the student fails the quiz (scores 69% or less), then the quiz is replaced into the pool of available quizzes and the student's grade decreases. Our login page is located at ReadTheory.org/auth/login (this URL will not work if you are currently logged in!). There is a range of acceptable Lexile® levels that can be appropriate for students in each grade level. Lighthouses were constructed to make the shore easier to see. On ReadTheory, reading levels are never assigned manually. MetaMetrics® has studied the ranges of Lexile® reader measures and Lexile® text measures at specific grades in an effort to describe the typical Lexile® measures of texts and the typical Lexile® measures of students of a given grade level. This menu will allow you to toggle through your various classes. Teacher logs in,Teacher reviews pending student invitations on the My Students page.Teacher clicks the "Accept" button beside each invitation.Teacher goes to the Progress Reports page and begins to track progress. To view emblems images and point ranges, view an individual student progress report. We are currently able to support ourselves through the means outlined above, and hope to continue doing so for the foreseeable future. While the two systems are not directly comparable owing to their differing methodologies, this comparison chart can be used as a guide when integrating ReadTheory into your school-wide literacy program. To say that some books are "just right" for fifth graders assumes that all fifth graders are reading at the same level. All users sharing one device must log out in order for other users to log in, close this window In the early 1800s, navigation was basic. Getting StartedLogging InClass ManagementProgress ReportsReading LevelsKnowledge PointsMiscellaneous We sure do. Note that Lexile® measures DO NOT indicate the student's level of comprehension of the passages or the Lexile® measure of the student.Set a benchmark number of quizzes that you expect students to pass every week (month, etc.). The easiest way is to make sure that parents know their children's usernames and passwords. We have no way of working around these security filters, so please inquire with your school's or district's IT personnel if you suspect that your incoming mail is being filtered. We regret that we cannot block advertisers based on keywords or categories alone. Our teachers use ReadTheory in a number of different ways. When teachers create student accounts, a copy of all usernames and passwords is sent to their email address automatically. On ReadTheory, individual passages are never assigned manually. As long as your students were working on our full-length multiple choice quizzes (i.e., NOT the placement pretest or an essay question), their progress will be saved. ReadTheory makes it easy to track your students' grade progress over time. We reserve the right to take action to suspend a student's account in an effort to discontinue such activity, as it adversely affects the experience of our program for other users. Near the top of the roster on your My Classes page, there is a small drop-down menu. Once the invitation is accepted, the new teacher will be able to track their progress. We are unable to provide instructions for every version of every browser that is compatible with our site. The ReadTheory Team, on the other hand, is a small group of hardworking individuals in two different time zones who would be glad to answer your questions and concerns by email at support@ReadTheory.org. The progress report will automatically update once he or she completes a full quiz. Save valuable time with automatic marking of exercises Track individual student and class progress at any time. Sometimes users who already have accounts get confused and think that they can complete the pretest through these previews, without logging in. In the top-right corner of the Mastery of ELA Common Core State Standards Graph," there is a link to learn more about these standards. You can send us an email at support@ReadTheory.org. This yields an average score of 80%, but this does NOT reflect the increased difficulty of the higher-level quiz. A real, live human will respond to your message within one business day. If you are interested in obtaining high-quality print versions of our passages, all of our workbooks are reasonably priced at just $0.99 (USD) per book, with discounts for those who buy in bulk. You can use this calendar to specify a date range for your progress report's view. By repeating a failed quiz, the user has a second chance to gain points on that quiz, and it helps the user to build up the content knowledge that he or she may have lacked the first time around. Please remember to click your username followed by Logout in the upper right-hand corner of the page any time you wish to log out of the site. If the student performs outstandingly on the quiz (scores 90% or more), the student's grade increases. Like most websites, ReadTheory is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, in every country in every time zone in the world. Each time a student passes a full quiz (scores between 70% and 89%), the student remains at the same level. They must excel on a quiz (score over 90%) in order to move up a level. There are as many different ways to add or remove saved login credentials as there are browsers. Other students' accounts will remain unaffected. Once that student's data is shown, there is a grey "Reset Progress" button near the top of the report. If you would like to test-drive the site from the perspective of a student, we suggest that you create a student account for yourself. Two neutral third parties are also conducting research of their own concerning the effectiveness of our program. They are a reflection of the points a student has earned on ReadTheory. The quiz will not reappear immediately. You can use the pencil icon from within your teacher account's view to toggle essay questions on or off for your students. That average is unweighted for difficulty. Note that the amount of time and effort needed to complete a quiz depends on many factors, including each student's reading abilities, the length and difficulty of the passages presented, and the number of questions accompanying each passage. On our graphs, dotted lines represent averages. This error message appears when users accidentally access our Sign Up page instead of our Login page. If a student is being asked to repeat the placement pretest, this is generally for one of three reasons. You can view our parent flyer for this information. Metametrics, the makers of the Lexile® system, uses a data-based approach to assigning text levels. You will be prompted to enter a new password twice and then click submit. You will be prompted to confirm this choice before proceeding. You are currently accessing ReadTheory from your teacher account, which is unequipped to access our quizzes. In each case, a new quiz will be randomly drawn from the appropriate pool of available quizzes at the student's level. You can also use this feature to re-enroll students for the new year without having to recreate their accounts or reset their points to zero. Student and teacher accounts are equipped with different functions, and accounts cannot flip back and forth between these functions. We unfortunately can't recover data from these preview questions. Again, this occurs when our site logs users out after a certain time period of what seems like inactivity. This would mix percentages from across multiple grade levels. If this happens to your students, they can simply log back in to pick up where they left off. ReadTheory is completely free of charge for an unlimited number of students per school. If you still can't find your answer, feel free to contact us. Review our preliminary study results to learn how ReadTheory improves test scores, grades, and confidence. This situation is always reversible. Yes, you can reset student progress by clicking the "Reset Progress" button found on the student progress report page while logged in as a teacher. Even site administrators cannot call up your students' passwords after they are set. Unlike grade and Lexile® levels, they do not reflect any deeper pedagogical meaning. All students logging in for the first time will need to take our placement pretest, which starts on a third grade level by default. Putting any kind of paywall on the site is not part of our plans. When this student begins taking quizzes after reset, her or she will be prompted to retake the pretest and continue forward as if entering our program for the first time. This provides for maximum differentiation and individualized learning. Clicking "Enter Focus Mode" will switch a student's browser window to "Full Screen Mode." This creates a more distraction-free experience and increases the amount of screen space available for the passage and questions to be displayed. There is no direct correspondence between a specific Lexile® measure and a specific grade level. Our A.I driven software constantly notes students' performance and adapts the level of difficulty of exercises accordingly. If you or your students ever encounter an ad that you find inappropriate, please report it to us at support@ReadTheory.org along with the URL (web address) of the advertiser in question so that we can add it to our blacklist immediately. This is to help you gauge whether your students are improving over time. Each student receives knowledge points (KP) for learning and making progress in our program. Because passage assignment is random within each reading level, it may be several days or weeks before the quiz returns, but it always remains a possibility. With thousands of interactive exercises and worksheets, you can find the perfect activity for your students. If you are unable to find instructions for removing saved password information in your browser, one temporary solution is to simply use another browser instead. If the student performs outstandingly on the quiz (scores 90% or more), the student's level increases. Yes. The problem was that lighthouses had weak lights. Students' levels do not always increase when they pass a quiz. This problem was solved by a French physicist named Augustin-Jean Fresnel. After our placement pretest, students will be placed at a level, and our program will draw a passage at random from within that level for the student. Teacher accounts only provide administrative and statistical oversight for student accounts. We know that this can lead to situations where students either accidentally or deliberately disrupt their classes by removing themselves from their classes. When you click this button, the site will prompt you to confirm your choice. Although ship captains did have some tools to guide them, they still relied heavily on eyesight. Please don't forget to check your spam folder if you do not receive an automatically generated message from us right away. If you are certain that the students did complete the pretest in its entirety, we ask that you double-check to ensure that they are using precisely the same usernames that appear on your roster. Identify where progress needs to be made. We do not put time pressure on our users because we want them to be able to digest our passages to the fullest extent possible, but sometimes this means that users' log-in sessions time out while they are still reading. They provide descriptive information and are appropriate for norm-referenced interpretations only. Captains were on constant lookout to make sure their ship didn't run aground. On that grade 6 quiz, she may then only score a 70%. Here are some suggestions for you to choose or modify as you see fit... Use our placement pretest as a benchmark to set improvement goals on an individual basis, or for a collaborative class-average goal. Because displaying ads is a crucial part of how we are able to sustain ourselves, we kindly request that you disable any ad-blocking browser plugins you may be using while visiting our site. For instance, if four students in your class finished the placement pretest at an 8th grade level and four students finished at a 6th grade level, the dotted line on the Pretest Grade Level Performance graph will run horizontally at y = 7, because the average performance in your class was at a 7th grade level.
